House Passes Measure For State to Spend Money in Poultry.

ALIEN LABOR BILL WINS DESIGNED TO PROTECT IGNO-

RANT FOREIGNERS.

Yesterday's session in the lower house of the legislature resembled, for a time, at least, a day on the produce exchange, eggs and chickens being quoted freely during the debate incidental to restrict to guards, $12,000; paints, oils, glasses, $600; insurance, $750; gratuities, $3,000. the passage of house bill No. 51 (by Dean), providing for the appointment of a state board of poultry commissioners and for the holding of fowl exhibi-

During the discussion some interesting opinions were heard from different quarters. Edwards, for instance, said the believed eggs should be sold by the pound instead of the dozen. Speaker Hull, sub rosa, declared his belief that certain eggs that he had met should certainly have been bartered in that nanner. Then varying opinions were offered as to the best time of the year or exhibition purposes from the standpoint of the chicken. Thompson thought hat hens appeared to better advantage that hens appeared to better advantage the less they had in the way of feathers, and for that reason believed that the D. A. & M. exhibitions during the moulting period would be preferable than those held as per the terms of the companion of levying assessments. Moves to Kill Appropriation.

Kinney then amended to strike out the appropriation section of the bill. as soon thought of striking out the enacting clause. From some of the arguments offered against Kinney's amendment, it would appear that on the raising of prize fowl depends the quantity and quality of eggs yet to be laid in Utah. The chicken industry, several connded, was the bulwark of the national government. Kinney's amendment lost. Joseph then proposed that eggs occupy a co-ordinate position with chickens throughout the bill. His proposal was not accepted.

It was evident at this stage that unless a compromise was effected the bill. Which has been strongly lobbied, would fail. The medium came in the form of an amendment by Miller, changing the blennial appropriation from $1,600 to $1.000. This amendment carried. On final passage the vote stood 25 ayes and 14 nayes. Those opposing the measure were Curtin, Daily, Johnson, Joseph, Kinney, Kuchler, Maughan, Merrill, Pace, Simons, Spencer, Stringham, Thompson and Tolton.

Tolton explained his vote by saying that he believed the state's finances

Alien Labor Bill Passes.

With scarcely a dissenting voic Cromar's alien labor bill (H. B. No. 80) was passed yesterday by the house. Cromar explained that the intent of Fromar explained that the intent of his measure was to protect alien labortis, who, unable to understand the English language, had been made the prey in the past of "interpreters," who charged an exorbitant fee for obtaining them positions and so much per month for the privilege of retaining them. An amendment by Joseph providing that the taking of time checks or due bills from alien laborers for such "services" would be punishable the same as though money were taken, was passed.

though money were taken, was passed. The bill carried by a vote of 35 to 3, those opposing being McCrea, Miller and Simons. McCrea explained that he was with the measure in spirit, but could not vote for it as long as it contained Joseph's amendment because, he claimed, it made it impossible for any person to act as the agent of a laborer where the purpose was not necessarily to secure pecuniary reward.

was amended in committee and further amended on the floor of the senate. The amendment prohibiting the sale of the birds was offered by Park.

The amendment was debated at length, its friends urging that the real menace to the game is not the sportsmenace to the game is not the sports-man, but the market hunter, while the opposition contended that persons who did not hunt would thus be deprived of the pleasure of eating the game. Thus the time-honored debate rolled on until a vote was taken and the amendment reached Senator Gardner's bone of facetiousness. He at once moved to further amend the section so as to make it unlawful for anyone to hunt the birds with a gun. There was no

Clegg tried to reduce the day's kill from forty to twenty birds, but the amendment failed. Later Clegg secured the adoption of an amendment raising the license for outside hunters from $10 to $25, but he met with failure when he attempted to shorten the open season by a month. He proposed to make it from Nov. I to Jan. 1, but was voted down and the bill went through with Oct. I to Jan. 1 as the open sean. Walton secured the adoption of amendment permitting the use of two-inch mesh nets in the Bear and Sevier lakes, and Callister an amend-ment permitting fish to be taken from the Sevier river during the "dry sea-son."
